

The people of NJ want to have some privacy and relief from the people that think they have the right to pester us night and day. Here in the east, citizens are bombarded with requests from many sources. We have mountains of unsolicited mail, e-mail, commercials on radio and television (and now in movie theaters), signs on everything. We have had to invent all kinds of things to screen our lives. Is it too much to ask to be able to have a phone ring and someone you actually want to talk to be on the other end? Maybe the federal law should be strengthened.
